SUPERIOR COURT FOR APRIL TERM

Convenes Monday--
Speaks Case Hearing-- Complications Likely in This Case.

The regular April term of Guilford Superior court will convene Monday morning, Judge F. A. Daniels, Greensboro, presiding. Solicitor S. M. Gattis, of Hillsboro, will act as prosecutor. There are less than forty cases on the docket, the majority being of minor importance.

The case in which there is considerable interest is that of Moses Speaks, the High Point man who killed his wife and son-in-law some weeks ago. A true bill, charging murder in the first degree was returned at the recent term of court. The defendant will most likely be arraigned Monday and a day fixed for the trial.

The defense will be that Speaks is crazy; that he has been subject to fits of insanity for years. His counsel, Hudson & Swift, contend that he is not responsible for his actions and that this fact is proven because of his attitude towards a Yadin farmer, who he alleges, secured a tract of land belonging to him by using illegal methods. It is stated that on numerous occasions Speaks declared his intention of regaining possession of this land or of getting even with the present owner.

At the last term of court Speaks' counsel stated to the court that there was a volume of evidence in Massachusetts that would show that he had been confined in an asylum for the insane in that State two or three times and that the solicitor would not accept affidavits secured from the officials of such institutions. Therefore the court ordered the county to supply counsel for the defense with the funds necessary to secure the evidence in a shape acceptable by the State. This the commissioners refused to do, stating that in their opinion Speaks was crazy and should not be tried on the charge of murder in the first degree. Just what the court will say when it is found that the commissioners refused to carry out its instructions is not known, but the general impression is that as a result Judge Daniels will not allow Speaks to be tried on the charge of murder in the first degree.

The only other case of interest is that of State vs. W. H. Taylor, who is charged with embezzling a sum of money from the Commercial National Bank of this city. The transaction in question occurred over a year ago. The defendant went to the bank and secured a loan for a certain period, giving as security a quantity of cotton, which he stated was of a certain quality. He secured his loan, according to certain stipulations, and turned over the bills of lading for the cotton as is customary in cases of this nature. However, after several months had elapsed he made no effort to dispose of the cotton and after requesting him to make a settlement of the loan, long overdue, officials of the bank made a closer investigation and discovered that the cotton was not of the quality the defendant had represented it to be. They took the cotton and sold it, but it did not bring anything like the amount of the loan. The defendant is under a $500 bond for his appearance at this term of court.

Jurors Summoned.

The following jurors have been summoned to be on hand and from this number the grand jury will be selected: Jas. M. Geringer, Eli P. R. Clapp, Reuben Cobb, W. R. Zimmerman, J. B. Coley, D. F. Bennett, J. R. Boon, D. B. Smith, S. H. Pillow, J. C. Andrews, D. M. Causey, W. E. Hockett, G. C. Burton, J. A. Bevil, O. F. Pearce, Jno. P. Scott, W. M. Donnell, Clark Kirkman, C. T. Cummings, T. R. Dillard, W. G. Baisley, A. L. Bain, A. L. Little, W. L. Layton, W. D. Lane, F. F. Baynes, Thos. M. Rayle, P. L. Stanley, C. A. Lowe, M. E. Futrell, J. A. Bowman, N. T. Pegram, W. G. Bodenheimer, Z. Raleigh, March 30.—The corporation commission issued today a statement of the condition of North Carolina State banks at the close of business March 7, there being 353 of them, an increase of three banks within three months. The statement shows that within the past three months the capital stock of banks has increased $170,510; the total resources $182,205 and total deposits $114,147. The total capital stock at this time is $9,200,757; surplus $2,162,742 and undivided profits $2,013,248. The deposits include $7,004,013 time deposits, $28,900,742 deposits subject to check, $3,014,222 demand certificates of deposit and $7,885,743 savings deposits. Masquerade Ball
Will be Given at Elks Club Tonight

The social feature for tonight's program at the Elks club will be a masquerade ball, at which prizes will be given to the lady and gentleman wearing the most elaborate costumes, also for the most original costumes. This will begin at 9:30 o'clock. Today is Junior Order and Red Men's Day.

A large number of people took dinner and supper at the club yesterday. The ladies in charge will serve dinner and supper today at the usual hours for 35 cents per meal and they promise that the menu will excel that given on previous days.

The feature for last night was the square dance at 9 o'clock in the lodge room. The fiddle and banjo furnished the music, the dance being led by Julian Price and Mrs. Jeter, W. L. Clement and Mrs. Doak, Judge Boyd, Mrs. J. R. Williams, Jake Oettinger, Mrs. Ben White and others. This proved most amusing and enjoyable. The regular dance followed.

This afternoon a donkey party will be given for the children, the admission being 5 cents. Tomorrow afternoon an automobile ride will be given the children, the fee being 5 cents per ride. A number of ladies will be on hand to chaperon the children each afternoon.

ANOTHER MOVE TO PARDON STRIPLING

Chief of Baldwin Detective Agency will ask for Stripling's Release--
Member Georgia Prison Commission
Praises Stripling's Record.

Atlanta, March 30.—The newest development in the case of Thomas Edgar Stripling, petitioning for a pardon, came to light Wednesday morning upon Capt. Wiley Williams' return to Atlanta after an absence of several days on an inspection tour. He found in his mail a letter from W. G. Baldwin, of Roanoke, Va., head of the Baldwin Detective agency, in which Baldwin urged the pardon of Stripling.

"I have known him intimately for many years, and he was the best police officer I ever met," wrote Baldwin, whose detective agency is the largest of its kind in the country. It serves many of the big railroad systems.

"I am coming to Atlanta on April 6, to appear before the state prison commission, in Stripling's interest," continued Baldwin.

THE OYSTER CASE IN JUNCTION TO COME UP MONDAY

Proceedings will be of Interest as State and National Anti-Trust Law will be an Issue.

Next Monday before Judge Frank A. Daniels counsel will argue for and against the injunction proceedings instituted by the Sealshipt Oyster System Company, a New York corporation, against C. Scott & Co., of this city, to prevent the use by the defendant of a case or container for oysters patented by the plaintiff.

Inasmuch as the national and state anti-trust laws will be an issue in the case the proceedings will be of much interest to the general public and especially to merchants using cases secured from the plaintiff. Stern & Stern are attorneys for the plaintiff and Justice & Broadhurst represent the defendant. A restraining order was secured from Judge Daniels several days ago and Monday set as the day on which the permanent injunction will be argued for and against.

It will be remembered that on the day following the issuing of the restraining order claim and delivery proceedings were instituted by the plaintiff to secure possession of the case held by the defendant, but a bond double the cost of the case was given by the defendant and possession of the case was retained. The claim and delivery proceedings will come up before Justice of the Peace D. H. Collins on Tuesday.

Several days ago The Telegram gave the contents of the parties to the action, the plaintiff contending that inasmuch as the defendant had violated a provision in the contract by not purchasing oysters from the plaintiff had rendered the purchase of the case void and that the case reverted back to the original owner. The defendant contends that it purchased the case and admits that a certain contract was made. However, it is contended that the contract is in violation of the state and federal anti-trust laws and is therefore void.

SIX ESCAPED FROM GUILFORD BASTILE

Cut Steel Bar of Cell and Through Twelve Inches of Brick Wall to Liberty--All the Escapes are Negroes.

Using a steel spring taken from an old shoe to cut through a steel bar of their cell and then digging through a twelve inch brick wall with an iron bar wrested from a cell bunk, six negroes George Sherrill, John Grady, Clarence King, Joe Brown, Richard Park and Hill Hood, the latter two being Rockingham prisoners, escaped from the Guilford county jail early yesterday morning and to this hour have not been caught.

When Jailer Apple went into their cell yesterday morning at 7 o'clock to give the prisoners their morning meal he was startled to find a large hole through the brick wall in the east end. Examination showed that two of the cell were vacant and six negroes missing. Four other negroes were still confined in the second floor of the jail, but would talk but little of the escape. The officers were at once notified, and escaped negroes were nowhere found.

An old shoe found stowed away in a secluded corner showed how the bar of the cell enclosure had been cut. A steel spring had been used to saw teeth made and the bar had been cut through. It was evident that this had been done before last night, as the hole held in place by a slip on the outside to prevent detection. Once outside the enclosure and to remove the iron bar it was an easy matter of the middle of the night.

Once through the brick wall the negroes crawled through the windows and let themselves down by the first fence was reached to the first pulled down and wire, making an outlet from the jail enclosure. On the side next to Stafford's side there was a little danger of escaped convict, George Sheppard, who was shot in the leg while attempting to escape from his cell and was held in the injured foot of the jail enclosure. He was not believed to be around the injured member.

According to the freedom of the day night Joe Brown remained in the cell with his prisoners were locked in. The remaining four, his were in the left cell on the east by using the iron slab, was saved a bar of the

MONTHLY SESSION CONVENES MONDAY

County Commissioners will Elect
Chairman and Decide Matter of Having New Court--Court House
Annex will be Subject of Action.

The County Commissioners will meet in regular monthly session Monday morning and a good deal of important business will come up for consideration. The board will elect a chairman to succeed J. A. Davidson, resigned. It is probable that W. C. Tucker, who has served as temporary chairman since the resignation of Mr. Davidson, will be elected permanent chairman.

The commissioners will also decide on the proposition of having a county court, the bill establishing said court having been published in The Telegram several days ago. The law was enacted to become effective on May 1, 1911, if the county commissioners saw fit to establish the court. It is believed that the court will be established as it would mean a saving of something like $3,000 each year to the county. It would abolish the Municipal court of Greensboro, Judge Eure being made judge of the county court until 1913. Both criminal and civil cases could be tried by jury if necessary.

Another thing that will be decided upon will be the plans for the annex to the court house, to cost something like $5,000. This would be used by the county commissioners, treasurer, and the county board of education. Also at times one room would most likely be used as a county court room if the new court is established.

west end cell the negroes pushed it out and crawled through. The work of getting the brick out from beside the window was an easy task.

Sam Martin, Ernest Phibbs, Tom Griffin and a High Point negro were in a cell across the corridor, but these declared they knew little of the plans of the prisoners. The Rockingham prisoners, they said, had told them they were going north. They would not tell when the cell bar was sawed through, but said the negroes escaped shortly after midnight.

Masons yesterday repaired the hole in the wall through which the negroes crawled. The bricks were put in place with cement and the wall is more solid at this point than at any other. The bricks were formerly held with lime mortar and time had caused this to release its hold upon the brick. The dismembered cell bar was taken out and a new one substituted.

Bad Fire In Louisiana.

Alexandria, La., March 30.—A two hundred thousand-dollar fire practically wiped out the business section of Pollock last night. Twenty-eight buildings were destroyed. The fire was supposed to be incendiary origin.

SMITH

Of University of Virginia Invited to Address Historical Association.

Raleigh, March 30.—Secretary Clarence H. Poe, of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association, announces that the executive committee has obtained from Dr. Alphonso Smith, of the University of Virginia, recently Roosevelt professor at the University of Berlin, a promise to deliver an address in connection with the next annual meeting of the association to be in October in this city. They are also urging Hon. Woodrow Wilson and Dr. Henry Van Dyke to address the association at that time.

The membership includes several hundred of the leaders in literary and historical effort in every part of the State. Josephus Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, has been invited by the committee to present a paper on "The Influence of Nathaniel Macon on North Carolina History."

The personnel of the executive committee has recently changed by the resignations of Hon. J. Bryan Grimes and Dr. D. H. Hill and the appointment of R. D. W. Connor and Dr. T. P. Harrison in their stead. The other members of the committee are Dr. W. L. Poteat, Wake Forest College; Dr. Edwin Mims, Trinity College and Mr. W. J. Peale, Raleigh.

Campaign for S. S. Members Comes to Successful Close

At the Friends' meeting house, Asheboro street, last evening the Sunday school was entertained, this marking the close of a membership contest. The first of the year two committees were appointed to secure new members during the first quarter, it being understood that the losing committee was to entertain the entire school, the new members to be guests of honor. Mrs. Edwin B. Hodgin was chairman of the losing committee, while Miss Rhoda M. Worth headed the successful campaigners. About twenty-five new members were added to the membership roll.

A delightful program had been arranged for the occasion and the evening was most enjoyably spent by all present, there being songs, recitations, solos, quartets, etc. A highly instructive address on "The Sunday School, the Strongest Factor in the Maintenance of Sabbath Observance" was delivered by Prof. Lee S. Blair. After the rendition of the program refreshments were served and a delightful social hour spent.

Quite a number of Greensboro Endeavorers will go to Burlington today to attend the annual meeting of the State Union of Christian Endeavor, which convenes in the Christian church of that place this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. There are several societies in the city and it is expected that each will be represented by two or more delegates.

The sessions of the State Union promises to be most interesting. There will be three quiet hours, the subjects being "Christ my Strength," "Christ my Friend," "Alone with Christ." Dr. C. H. Hubbell, of the Young People's department of the Methodist Protestant church, will be present and make one or more addresses. Among those from Greensboro who will take part in the

NEWS OF NORTH STATE CAPITAL

Biblical Recorder to Have Fine Building--
Eastern Carolina League is Dead.

Raleigh, March 30.—The Biblical Recorder Company announces its purpose to erect a handsome three story building on Hargett street as a home for its newspaper plant and for the offices of the Baptist boards and general secretaries having headquarters in Raleigh. The building is to cost fifteen thousand dollars, will be of pressed brick with stone trimmings and will be 45x100 feet. Cary J. Hunter is president of the company.

No League Ball For Raleigh.

It seems to be pretty well settled that there will be no league baseball for Raleigh this summer, the Eastern Carolina League being evidently down and out. Furthermore, the three seasons that Raleigh has been depending on league ball for this sort of sport and recreation have about killed off the local talent that could be called into play now to provide local games, or rather the league ball has brought about conditions that have failed to develop local talent. Therefore Raleigh seems pretty well out of it in baseball attraction for the coming summer.

Owls Can't Hoot In State.

A week ago general headquarters for the Order of Owls in North Carolina was opened in Charlotte with J. J. Arlington in charge for the establishment of lodges of the order which carries insurance and sick and death benefits. Flaming advertisements of the promoters came to the attention of the State Commissioner of Insurance, James R. Young, and he has directed the chief of police at Charlotte to arrest the managers if necessary to stop their activities, the order having no license to do business in this State. The commissioner furthermore, refuses to license the order on the ground that the Supreme Secretary has admitted that he conducts the death benefit feature of the order for his own personal profit.

Corporation Commission Hearing.

April 10 is named by the corporation commission as the date for hearing the citizens of Asheboro and Asheboro Telephone Company and the Southern Bell Telephone Company in regard to a contest that is on in that town to compel the Southern Bell to give long distance connections with the local exchange of the Asheboro Telephone Co. The Bell now has only long distance service into Asheboro and the Asheboro Company has the control of the local field, the Bell having only the long distance booths about the town.

CLOTHES AND POLITICS.

It has often been asserted that clothes do not make the man, but here is a case in which clothes appear to be playing an important part in making or unmaking the future of a Socialist political leader. Signor Bissolati, leader of the Socialists in the Italian Chamber of Deputies, refuses to enter the Italian Cabinet because on state occasions he would have to wear a uniform.

Now the question arises, Is not Signor Bissolati as much the slave of fashion as the court favorite who dons all the finery of Italian royalty? One clings to his rich apparel because of custom or the dictates of court fashion requirements. The other clings to his plain clothes because it is the custom of Socialists to dress in that fashion. Each is a slave to clothes fashions. Socialist and royalist are both contending in this case that clothes make the man—the one that fine apparel makes the courtier, the other than plain clothes make the Socialist and the friend of the proletariat.

Signor Bissolati, of course, does not have this view of the matter. Socialists are opposed to all prevailing customs, and the Italian leaders view is, no doubt, that wearing a uniform ought not to be one of the requirements for entry into the Cabinet. This is a reasonable view, but not more so than the view that the Socialist leader's obligation to disregard the custom of his class is as binding as the obligation of Italian royalty to disregard the custom of requiring cabinet members to appear in uniform. Again, Signor Bissolati remains outside the cabinet on account of a difference of opinion about clothes. If he were less concerned about the cloth and the cut of his clothes, he would enter the Cabinet and thereby an enlarged avenue for the furtherance of the aims of his party. So much for the Italian Socialist's regard for clothes.

Clothes have frequently played an important part in politics. It is the custom of some men who wear very good clothes on other occasions to change their wearing apparel to very plain clothes upon entering a political campaign. They belong to the class of men who seek the favor of the masses in a campaign by slapping Bill Jones and John Smith on the back and making particular inquiries about the state of health of the Smith and Jones families. This course does not necessarily stamp a candidate as a cheap demagogue. It depends on what the course of the candidate is when he is not running for office. If it is his invariable custom to act in that way—as is the case with some men—the practice is not to be condemned. It merits condemnation, however, as a practice purely for political effect.

The people have learned a good deal about the wiles of the politicians in recent years and their low appeals for popular support are not as effective as they once were. The question of clothes, however, still plays a part of some importance in politics; and there are voters who will cast their ballots for a man clad in the garb of the proletariat who would not vote for the same person arrayed in the habiliments of fashion. This course is exceedingly unwise. The measuring of men by the standard of clothes in this manner is as bad as the case of one refusing to serve his fellows because the service cannot always be performed in the clothes he chooses to wear on ordinary occasions.

Clothes do not make the man in politics or out of politics; and the question of dress is one about which there should be the widest possible liberty of personal opinion allowed. On the other hand, there is no reason why the sojourner in Rome should not conform to the sartorial customs of the Romans when to do so violates no principle and is not antagonistic to conscientious opinions. If the particular cut of ones clothes is a matter of vital consequence, it is worth contending for. If not, it is a matter about which latitude of action is permissible.

As to the question of clothes in politics it is well for the people to remember that the real friend of the proletariat in these days is as likely to be found wearing the garb of the wealthy as to be found clad in the garments of the class he is seeking to aid.

It has been but a little while since Senator Joseph W. Bailey made a solemn vow never to wear a dress suit in the nation's capital or elsewhere. For all we know, the Senator may have religiously kept that vow; but constant wearing of the clothes of the common people has not prevented Senator Bailey from voting on important occasions for measures inimical to the welfare of the common people and solely in the interest of the worst class of men who wear claw hammer coats and stiff bosom shirts.

What matters it about the cut of the man's clothes if his influence is bad and his efforts are all aimed in the wrong direction?

Recently, a gentleman who said he had lived in most sections of the United States, made the statement that the climate of this section of North Carolina is the best climate to be found anywhere. This statement is no doubt literally true. People here complain about the weather some times, about sudden changes, or some other weather feature which does not please them; but the truth is that this climate is hard to beat. Those who complain have not tried other climates.

BANKS NOW IN BETTER SHAPE.

Report Shows Big Improvement Since February Treasury Call.

Washington, D. C., March 30.—National banks of the country are shown to be in a condition which Treasury officials consider favorable under their reports covering the close of business on March 7. The figures were completed today.

The 7216 banks are holding $94,804,495 more than the law requires in their reserves, and show gains of $155,000,000 in loans and discounts, $71,000,000 in cash and $191,000,000 in deposits, over the report of January 7.

The Pacific and Western States are the only ones to show losses. The Western States contracted loans and discounts aggregating $843,000 and lost $200,000 in cash. The Pacific States reduced loans $7,000,000 and lost $800,000 in cash.

The total gain of $191,000,000 in individual deposits is more or less artificial, as the preceding call made on January 7 was on Saturday, a half banking day, and the loss shown was occasioned by that fact.

Since the last call the banks have decreased their circulation $3,400,000, though that item stands $11,000,000 ahead of March, 1910. General increases are shown in all items as compared with March, 1910. Loans and discounts jumped $125,000,000.

NEWSPAPER OPINION.

Guilford's Great Progress.

Guilford is the only county in the State rich enough to build good roads by direct taxation, and yet Guilford is the only county in the State which has built its roads by a bond issue. A few years ago Guilford voted a bond issue of $30,000 for good roads. Since the building of good roads a revolution has taken place in that county. In the last ten years the increase in population is greater in that county than in any other county in the State, and the increase in property has been greater than in any other county in the State.

Ten years ago Randolph stood next to Guilford in white voting population, now Guilford has twice the population of Randolph and nearly a third more voting population. A few weeks ago the people of Guilford got together to consider the question of issuing more bonds for good roads. Upon investigation it was found that the county had a surplus each year, after repairing the roads and paying the interest on bonds and providing the sinking fund for said bonds, of $44,000 which could be used in building more good roads. Of course a county which has a surplus of nearly $50,000 it can put in good roads every year does not need a bond issue, and yet the tax rate in Guilford is only 79 cents on the $100 valuation of property. Keep in mind that the only county in North Carolina that is now able to build good roads by direct taxation is the county of Guilford—the only county which has built its roads with a bond issue. That looks good again. Who will dispute it? Is there any ground left for the opponents of a bond issue to stand on?

Yet with all this progress and development in Guilford everyone who knows the two counties will admit that Randolph is far superior to Guilford in natural resources and in the fertility of her soil.—Asheboro Courier.

THE RING OF MAGIC POWER.

Once there was a poor little girl who was unusually pretty. Her name was Sarah, and her father was dead. She lived with her mother in a small cottage. One day as she was coming home from school she was thinking so much about something that had happened that she took the wrong path and never noticed it until she was in the middle of a large wood, surrounded by big trees and bushes which bore fruit or flowers.

Sarah felt hungry, so she plucked an orange from one of the lower branches of a tree which stood in front of her. She sat down and began to peel the orange, but—wasn't it queer?—the peelings broke off in hard pieces. At last the orange was all peeled, and Sarah sat down on a great stone near her and set the orange in her lap.

At that the orange split into ten parts, and a most beautiful little man sat in the middle of it. Sarah thought he was a prince because he was dressed just like one. The minute he was free he looked up at Sarah and said in a sweet little voice: "Thank you kindly, little girl, for letting me out of that horrid orange. I am the prince of fairies, and you shall be rewarded. Will you put me down on the grass so that I can go home?"

Then Sarah answered: "Yes, I'll put you down, because I'm glad I could help you. But how did you get in the orange?"

"Well," said the prince, "I was roaming around here with my court hunt-

WILL JONES

"I AM THE PRINCE OF FAIRIES." ing, and when I was pursuing a hare I found myself alone, and an old witch shut me up in a big orange because I wouldn't marry her ugly daughter. And now here is your reward," he said, giving her a small gold ring, which immediately became big enough for her finger. As he slipped it on her finger he said: "You can never lose it, for it will grow with your finger, and you can never get it off. It has one power. When you want anything just name it and how big and the kind, or if you want to be in some place just touch your ring and say what you want."

Then Sarah thanked him, set him down and watched him run away.

She touched her ring and said, "I want to be in front of my door."

In one second she found herself in front of her own door.

When she came into the house she told her mother all about what had happened, and they decided to keep it secret. Then they had a fine supper of boiled chicken, mashed potatoes and other vegetables and gravy and a cake and pie.

The next day word came that the king of the country had lost his crown while out hunting. He said: "If any lady can find it I will make her queen or anything she wants. If any man finds it I will give him a reward of money, land or any other property."

When Sarah and her mother heard of the king's loss Sarah said, "I want to be right before the crown, and mother also."

In a minute Sarah and her mother were in a large wood, and Sarah's mother looked on the ground, and there she saw a beautiful crown made of diamonds and gold.

Sarah cried, "Oh, my goodness, mother, you're going to be queen, and I'll be a princess!"

And Sarah rubbed her ring and said, "I want mother and the crown and myself to be in our kitchen."

Sarah dressed her mother in a white silk dress and a beautiful light shawl, and she dressed herself in a white silk dress. She and her mother got all ready and got everything they needed from the ring. They got a beautiful carriage lined with red silk and a driver, who drove to the king's palace. They had the crown in a beautiful red box lined with red silk.

When the king received the crown he said, "Yes, I'll be glad to marry you." This he said to Sarah's mother, who was exceedingly beautiful. So he and she were married the next day.

Sarah and her mother told the king about the ring, and he said, "I won't tell."

They all lived in a palace and had whatever they wished. The king liked Sarah, and one day he brought her a snow white pony. Sometimes Sarah went to visit the prince of fairies, and they all lived happy forever after.

CHICHESTER'S PILLS

A Veteran Tenor. "He was a star of first magnitude in 1886," says a writer in the Frankfurter Zeitung, referring to Albert Niemann, who celebrated his eightieth birthday recently. "For many years he sang the heroic tenor parts in grand opera on the most important stages of the world and had the wisdom to retire in 1889, while still in the fullness of his powers. The veteran stage hero is stout and wears his snow white beard much as he did the blond one as Faust in the memorable performances when Pauline Lucca was the Marguerite."

Rugs and Gowns to Match.

There is a woman at one of the hotels near Fifth Avenue who has her own furniture in her rooms. In her possession are six fine oriental rugs, each of a different shade. She entertains a great deal, and on each occasion she has a rug put down that will harmonize with the coloring of her frock. There is said to be no shade that will not harmonize with the color of one or other of the rugs.—New York Sun.

A Special Medicine For Kidney Ailments.

Many elderly people have found in Foley's Kidney Remedy a quick relief and permanent benefit from kidney and bladder ailments and from annoying urinary irregularities due to advancing years. Isaac N. Regan, Farmer, Mo., says: "Foley's Kidney Remedy effected a complete cure in my case and I want others to know of it."—Howard Gardner.

How Mussels Move.

The general impression is that mussels do not move; they fasten themselves to certain objects or they lie in the mud and sand at the bottom of the water and there they pass their existence. In proof of this fact it is adduced that mussels are at times buried under the sandy deposit when a rush of water carries a lot of soil with it. A naturalist who has devoted much time to the study of these creatures says that mussels do move slowly and the movement is accomplished in the following manner: The mussel opens its shell and projects its body to a certain extent from its projecting case. Then it exerts some force whereby it keeps the shell above the soil and uses its body to propel itself along the bottom just in the same way as a land snake gets over the ground. If the sand is examined after the mussel has taken one of these strolls it will be easy to see two parallel lines caused by the edges of the shell touching the ground.

Quick Growing Trees.

A remarkable tree has been discovered about the region of Lake Chad. Its power of increase in every way is remarkable. In a few months an extensive tract of land, we read, became an impenetrable forest. In one season it is said to grow to the height of from four to five meters—in other words, from thirteen to over sixteen feet. Its foliage is said to resemble the mimosa, and its branches are thorny. The wood can be cut into planks, and the natives work it up into canoes. The Tilho mission has utilized the wood for making tables and doors.—London Globe.

The civic department of the club will meet in the library at 3 o'clock, just before the regular meeting of the club. Every member of the department is urged to be present at this hour as business of importance will come up.

THISTLE DECORATIONS FOUND IRRESISTABLE

Mrs. Champ Clark insists on using China Decorated With the Scotch Emblem.

Washington City, March 30.—Jeffersonian Democrats from the high grass regions, who have always thought Speaker-to-be Clark a plain, homespun person opposed to frills, were shocked today when they learned that Mr. Clark has ordered the famous thistle-marked Henderson china, cut glass, linen and silverware and solid mahogany furniture resurrected from the Capitol store-rooms and used to furnish a private dining room in the House wing for his own use.

All of these dining room fixings were made especially for the late David B. Henderson and paid for out of the House contingent fund. They have been in storage ever since Henderson surrendered his Speaker's gavel to Mr. Cannon, nearly nine years ago. Mr. Cannon never used them nor had he a private dining room. He took his luncheon of crackers and milk and mince pie or something of that sort in the main dining room of the House restaurant.

Perhaps Mr. Clark might have done the same had it not been for the thistle monogram on the Henderson linen, china and silver. Mr. Henderson was Scotch; so is Mrs. Clark. When she heard of the thistle china, a set of several hundred pieces, she suggested to Mr. Clark that he use it. He looked it over and found it good.

Mr. Clark's daily luncheon is simple, although he probably will serve more substantial meals to his friends. Appreciating that five-eighths of the human body is water, Mr. Clark consistently orders each day for his luncheon a glass of water, a glass of milk, a cup of tea and a piece of pie. First he drinks the water, then the milk and then the tea. Sometimes after that he even eats the pie.

Baldwin wrote to Captain Williams not know that he is a member of the state prison commission. As chief of police of Columbus, Ga., Baldwin and Captain Williams met several times at the police chiefs' convention, and Baldwin wrote to Williams not as state official, but as a police officer.

Captain Williams declared Wednesday morning that Stripling served on the police force of Columbus during his incumbency as chief of the department, and, as Baldwin says, he made an excellent record as an officer," added Captain Williams.

A singular coincidence is related by Captain Williams in connection with the Stripling case. He says there are at present two men by the name of Cornett on the Columbus police force. John R. Cornett and his son, Homer Cornett. The elder Cornett, says Captain Williams, was the first cousin of Will Cornett, who was killed by Stripling, and Homer Cornett, the son, is a first cousin of Stripling, the slayer. This singular relationship, he says is explained through marriage, but he isn't familiar with the exact facts.

"There is still another unusual relationship involved in this very remarkable case," concluded Captain Williams. "Mrs. Cornett, widow of Stripling's victim, married W. F. Nelson, and Nelson, I am informed, is Stripling's first cousin."

Warning to Railroad Men

Look out for severe and even dangerous kidney and bladder trouble resulting from years of railroad. Geo. E. Bell, 639 Third St., Fort Wayne, Ind., was many years a conductor on the Nickel Plate. He says: "Twenty years of railroad left my kidneys in terrible condition. There was a continual pain across my back and hips and my kidneys gave me much distress, and the action of my bladder was frequent and most painful. I got a supply of Foley Kidney Pills and the first bottle made a wonderful improvement and four bottles cured me completely. Since being cured I have recommended Foley Kidney Pills to many of my railroad friends." Howard Gardner.

The Thistle in New Zealand.

When New Zealand was first occupied by the white men it was practically without a pest of any sort. The white man, however, introduced the rabbit, Scotch thistle and sparrow. These multiplied exceedingly, and then stoats and weasels were introduced to kill the rabbits and "little owls" to thin out the sparrows. Experience has shown that the stoats and weasels think more of native birds as articles of diet than they do of the rabbit. The "little owl" on the other hand, appears to have quite justified his introduction to New Zealand, as he is reported to be waging violent war on sparrows, beetles and grubs. So far nothing has been invented which will eradicate the Scotch thistle; it is characteristic of its country.

The Stage and Stage Folk

GOODWIN'S LIMIT
NOW 48 STATESActor Barred From Marrying Again in New York Still has Ample Field for Operations.

Alas and alack!
Nat Goodwin, the "marrying actor," can only take unto himself 48 more wives!

Willie Collier and Nat's other Lambs' Club cronies profess to see in this a heinous conspiracy to prevent Nat from engaging in the only pastime that he really enjoys. The Forty-second Street Country Club is convinced that there is a deep-laid plan to boycott Nat.

"Of course Nat can marry in some other State or Territory than New York, but there are only 48 of them, all told," said a member of this club yesterday. "And just suppose the others shall follow the example of New York and prevent him from marrying within their limits after he has been roped in by one of their sirens?"

"The best thing Nat can do," said another member, "is to move to Salt Lake City and take 'em on in batches. He might rent the Mormon Temple for one of his dormitories."

The betting was two to one around Broadway centres of learning yesterday that the old war horse Nat Goodwin would be entered in the matrimonial sweepstakes within a month. Which is another way of saying that Nat told his friends recently that he is suffering from a recrudescence of that "feeling of inspiration" that always comes before he is bitten by the matrimonial microbe. Nat couldn't be induced to give a hint as to the identity of the girl (even after the fifth round), but his intimates remarked yesterday that he is in St. Louis.

Before he left for the West Nat told his friends frankly that he was tired of being a bachelor. He said he expected a marriage license clerk would see him before he became Osterized.

"Matrimony with me, my boy, is not a habit, as some people seem to think—it's an inspiration, a feeling of fervor that leads me to do the thing that I believe is right and will result in the most permanent happiness," said he who upholds Cupid in the well-known scholar's contention that marriage is not a failure.

"It's the very subject that I am treating in a most exhaustive manner in my book," he continued, "and I think I will advance a philosophy that will have many followers at least among the men and women of the stage."

Edna Goodrich "crossed her heart and wished to die" if she had any personal malice toward Nat when she begged the court that he be refused permission to marry. Former Mrs. Goodwin and her mother are living at an uptown hotel. Now that her stage days are over, as far as the necessity of earning a livelihood are concerned, Miss Goodrich shrinks from publicity like a meadow violet. With her lawyer acting as middle man, she said last evening:

"It was only because it was the usual request that I asked that Mr. Goodwin be forbidden to remarry in this State. I am sorry for him, but I can assure you I have no intention of dying so that my former husband may have a Broadway wedding.—New York American.

Subway Travel.

American Medicine thinks that "the reported effect of subway travel is another instance of hasty and ignorant assumption." It says that it "is extremely doubtful, moreover, if the difference between the subway air pressure and that of the surface atmosphere is ever sufficient to affect the ear drum to any appreciable extent. The fear that there is to be an increase of deafness as a result of the development of subways in our large cities may be dismissed as quite groundless."

Has Millions of Friends.

How would you like to number your friends by millions as Bucklen's Arnica Salve does? Its astounding cures in the past forty years made them. It's the best Salve in the world for sores, ulcers, eczema, burns, boils, scalds, cuts, corns, sore eyes, sprains, swellings, bruises, cold sores. Has no equal for piles. 25c. at Fariss-Klutz Drug Co.

Optimistic.

"Is there truth in him?"
"Yes. He is cheerful of it."
"How do you know?"
"There is truth in all things, isn't there?"
"S'pose so."
"Well, none ever came out of him."

Some Protection.

"She married a horse doctor."
"You are mistaken."
"So I heard."
"He may have been a horse doctor before they were married, but he is a veterinary surgeon now."

ABOUT ACTORS

Catharine Countiss has opened her stock season in Grand Rapids, Mich., with great success.

William Gillette has revived his war play, Held by the Enemy, earlier than he intended, owing, it is said, to a demand on the part of the public for war plays caused by the mobilization of the troops in Texas, which has caused an interest in military pieces.

There is a movement in Boston for the purchase of the home of Louisa M. Alcott, author of Little Women, at Concord, and John Craig, of the Castle Square Theatre, is to give a matinee performance of Arms and the Man for the benefit of the fund.

The New Theatre in New York has been leased to the Liebler Company at a rent said to be $75,000 a year and 20 per cent of the profits. The first production to be made there will be the Garden of Allah on an elaborate scale. The lease is to be for a short time only, as the founders contemplate giving grand opera there in a few seasons.

NEW DEPARTURE.

Selling Medicine at Half Price Under Guarantee of Cure.

After two months of remarkable sales Howard Gardner, the enterprising druggist, says that his plan of selling at half price the regular 50 cent size of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and guaranteeing to refund the money if it does not cure, has been the greatest success he has ever known.

Anyone suffering with dyspepsia, constipation, liver troubles, headache, dizziness, coated tongue, or the general tired feeling, caused by inactive liver and bowels or disordered digestion, should take advantage of his new departure and buy a bottle of Dr. Howard's specific at half price, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

A Deep Pennsylvania Shaft.

The deepest shaft in the bituminous coal field in Pennsylvania, according to the report of Colonel Henry C. Demming, consulting geologist, mineralogist and chemist, is operated by the Maryland Coal company at St. Michael, about two and one-half miles south of South Fork, on the Dunlo branch of the Pennsylvania railroad. At the Maryland company's operation the hoist shaft is 697 feet deep and the air shaft is 671 feet. Within ten miles east of this point is the highest mountain peak in the state, Blue Knob.—Philadelphia Record.

A MEETING ON SHIPBOARD

It Brought Pain at First and Then Happiness

By BLAUDE PAMARES

The great steamer plowed its way onward, each throb of the engines bringing her nearer to the destined haven. Far up in the bow stood a man and a woman watching through the darkness. Plymouth would be reached early next morning. In silence the two stood gazing at the distant lights now beginning to flash out. This meant the close of the voyage, the end of a week of rare companionship.

At first the man had paid but scant heed to the slender, dark-eyed woman who faced him at the long table. He was off for a rest and did not care to meet people. But something in the quiet, restrained glance attracted him, and later, when he saw her on deck struggling with steamer rugs, it seemed only civil to offer her assistance.

Henceforth they fell into the way of being together. They read and criticized each other's books and magazines, they spent much time pacing the deck, and now had come the last night of it all. She was leaving the ship at Plymouth; he was going on to Cherbourg. The man was the first to speak.

"And am I never to see you again?" he asked.

She shook her head.

"It is very unlikely."

"You mean"—he demanded.

"I mean that it is best not," was the quiet answer, but he bent rebelliously closer.

"Listen," he said determinedly. "I know that it is far too soon to speak, that you have known me barely a week, yet when you talk this way—say that we shall not meet again?"

"You know nothing of me either," broke in the woman hurriedly—"who I am or whence I come."

"I know you are the loveliest and sweetest woman in the world," he said, with a stubborn frown, "and that I"—

"No, no," cried she sharply. Then she lifted her head. "I have not told you the whole truth," she said, a quiet dignity in her bearing. "I am indeed Mrs. Raymond, and my husband is dead, but—I am also Russell Bancroft's sister."

"Bancroft's sister." He repeated the words incredulously. "Bancroft's sister." His voice betrayed only an amazed bewilderment, but the woman, sensitively alive to every intonation, heard or fancied a certain hidden repugnance beneath the surprise. Her breath fluttered; then she pulled herself together.

"So I am sure you will agree with me that any further friendship between us is impossible," she said clearly. "Good night and goodbye."

Before he could divine her intention she had stepped toward the companionway. The next moment she was gone. The man turned to the rail.

"Bancroft's sister," he said again, his eyes resting vaguely, unseeing.

cup. When she went on deck. The rain was dripping dismally. Here and there a light glimmered faintly through the thick mist. So that was Plymouth! The gangplank leading to the tender was steep and slippery. People moved through the dusk like disembodied spirits. It was all very gloomy and very forlorn.

The gangplank was pulled in. The band, huddled into a damp group on the steamer's deck, broke forth with a lively air. A man standing near by laughed.

"If one has to be awake at such an hour it is a comfort to know that no one else can sleep either," he observed grimly.

"It would be hard to sleep through that racket," assented his companion. At the voice she started violently. Was it—could it be—Cortwright? For a moment she scarcely breathed, thrilled between ecstasy and fear. Then a dark figure detached itself from the fog and came to her.

"It is you," said the voice, and this time unmistakably it was Cortwright's.

"I wasn't sure at first."

"But you?" gasped the woman.

"Your ship—Cherbourg?"

"Hang Cherbourg!" said he cheerfully. Then his voice dropped.

"Do you think that you were very kind to me awhile back?" he asked gravely. "Wasn't it rather mean to spring a surprise of that sort on a man and then run before he could recover?"

"Oh!" expostulated she weakly. This was a new view of the matter.

"I thought it was because you didn't care," he went on. "You know, you wouldn't wait, wouldn't give me a chance to speak. I thought—perhaps—anyway, I felt mighty blue when I went below. Then I found—this." She could just glimpse the tiny square of lawn that he showed her. "It lay on the carpet near my door, and it told me—it told me—Ah, sweetheart," he cried, a sudden subdued exultation ringing through his tone, "that gave me the courage to come. It told me that perhaps you felt sorry for me; that perhaps you, too, cared—just a little bit—that you might listen to me. Was I wrong, dear? Will you marry me?"

The mist was drifting out to sea. The clouds had broken, and in the east appeared a glow of crimson and gold. The sun was rising in all its splendor and majesty. The rain was over. For a moment the woman gazed with wide, glad eyes at the newborn day; then she turned to meet the man's eager entreaty.

"I will marry you whenever you like," she said.

NEWS OF SPORTSMAY BE TROUBLE AHEAD FOR VIRGINIA LEAGUE.

The Richmond News-Leader of yesterday has the following:

That the Tidewater League intends to fight the Virginia League to a finish was evidenced yesterday when the outlaws met and adopted a schedule calling for 126 games, three more than are to be played in the Virginia League and starting April 18, two days before the Virginia League opens the season.

It was believed at first that the new league was waiting for the old league to adopt its schedule before getting busy in order that they might adopt one that would not conflict. It now develops that their reason for waiting was to put one over on the time of opening and closing.

The Virginia League opens in Norfolk April 20 and the Tidewater League opens there April 18; the Virginia League closes in Norfolk September 6, and the Tidewater closes there September 9. Through the schedule differences the new league already has a great advantage over the old league.

From present indications the new league will have the best of it in Norfolk this season. Stories from there are to that effect and the people are now coming to Richmond with the stories. A prominent Norfolk fan was in Richmond yesterday and stated that there is little or no interest in the Virginia League club in Norfolk, all eyes are turned to the Tidewater organization.

Asked why this is, the fan replied: "The people resent the fact that the Norfolk ownership is withheld from them; they do not like all this mystery and their sympathies and interest run to the new league."

It would not be a bad scheme for the Virginia League to add about two more weeks to the schedule and about $500 to the salary limits for it's war, war, war, the cry of every outlaw.

With practically no traveling expenses, the Tidewater League would be able to stand an increase of $500 in the salary limit and could also add two or three weeks to the playing season and then do as well as the Virginia League with its long jumps to poor ball towns.

VALUE OF TEAM WORK ON THE DIAMOND

BY JOHN J. MCGRAW.

Team work on the diamond is nothing but combination knowledge and ability. Its value cannot be estimated in figures. With it we have everything—without it, nothing.

One reason team work is hard to attain is because it requires both of the necessities enumerated. Either will not do. Any number of players possess physical ability, but through inexperience are lacking in knowledge of the game's fine points. If told to make a play they can execute it beautifully, but they do not possess that initiative which is shown by unhesitating execution. Plays arise that call for instinctive action, which comes only from experience.

It is hard to say which is the most valuable—physical ability or knowledge. The man with ability has the best chance, as he can acquire knowledge, if he is a thinker, but the veteran with the knowledge has little chance to develop ability that is lacking. His day is gone.

Many big league players are retained because of the knowledge they possess. They may not be so fast as some of the youngsters, but they can direct plays in a way that would not occur to less experienced men.

To illustrate this I mention the case of Harry Steinfeldt, the Cub third baseman. Harry may not be as fast as he was ten years back, but Manager Chance will go a long way before he can get a man who understands the game's fine points as well as Steinfeldt. With him on third the infield has confidence that a play in his territory will be made as it should be. They knew he will do the right thing at the right time, and will assist in carrying out any play that may be started across the diamond. An inexperienced player on third would cause so much anxiety that the effectiveness of the whole machine would be impaired.

Team work in baseball is the same as team work in any other business. What corporation could succeed unless its men understood each other and worked together?

One individual star could not run a corporation smoothly no more than any one great player could win a pennant for his team.

Team work is not necessarily the result of prearranged plans, as many baseball lovers seem to think. Real team work is a combination of quick thinking and execution. In a limited time such as a play on the diamond occurs in, the men must think together, each knowing what he must do and what his fellow will do to bring about the desired result. When every man knows his mates will think as fast as he does and execute his work exactly right, we have team work.

Say the pitcher is to pitch a fast ball outside the plate to a left-handed batter to make him hit to left field; if the manager signals the shortstop to move toward third and play deep to stop a ball hit in his direction, it is not team work. It is one-man work. On the other hand, if the shortstop appreciates the situation, gets the catcher's signal, and then moves to the proper position, it is team work.

Another instance frequently occurring:

The team in the field is two runs ahead and there is a runner on base. If the outfielders have had experience they would at once move back and play a deep field. They would realize that a single could score only one run under any circumstances, and would play it safe and be ready to hold a hit to a single.

Should they play too close and attempt to catch a line drive there would be a chance for the ball to get by for two or possibly three bases, breaking up the game. If a manager had to direct outfielders in this respect it would not be team work. If the players took the action on their own initiative it would be team work.

The idea that a series of signals precede every bit of team work is erroneous. Without knowledge, based on experience and physical ability, no amount of signaling could make a player do the proper thing. On the other hand, with the knowledge and experience, he would not require the signals.—Atlanta Journal.

Attacks School Principal.

A severe attack on school principal, Chas. B. Allen, of Sylvania, Ga., is thus told by him. "For more than three years," he writes, "I suffered indescribable torture from rheumatism, liver and stomach trouble and diseased kidneys. All remedies failed till I used Electric Bitters, but four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me completely." Such results are common. Thousands bless them for curing stomach trouble, female complaints, kidney disorders, biliousness, and for new health and vigor. Try them. Only 60c. at Farina-Klutz Drug Co.

Many a man shortens his days by lengthening his nights.

As soon as a baby is able to walk it goes after the bric-a-brac.

It takes a woman to manage a man without being able to understand him.

If a man fears death it is almost a confession that he isn't living right.

One way to lose a friend is to have him get rich while you remain poor.

It's easier for a man to pocket his pride than it is for a woman—because he has more pockets.

We are frequently admonished to "come early and avoid the rush," but suppose everybody were to do so?

Women make so much fuss about headgear that a man wonders how they will take to the unbecoming plain halos when they get to heaven.

CATHOLICS DEFEATED GUILFORD QUAKERS

Pennsylvanians Took Yesterday's Contest
by Score of Seven to Four.

Yesterday afternoon at Cone park LaFayette defeated Guilford by the score of seven to two. The day was exceedingly raw and the twirlers, Shore for Guilford and Fager for LaFayette, did not get in good shape. However, both pitched fair ball and it was easy to see that under favorable weather conditions they could dish out a good article of college ball. On account of the cold less than a hundred people were out to witness the contest.

Stewart, who has signed for a tryout as catcher for Greensboro, was behind the bat for Guilford. He played a good game and scored a run. Doak, another Greensboro player, played short, but he couldn't connect with the sphere. He had eight chances and failed on two.

LaFayette started the ball to rolling in the second and when the Quakers had retired the side four runs had been scored. It happened like this—Cedarquist leads off with a two bagger. Keeler sacrifices him to third. Fager singles to rightfield. Melan is safe on error of right. Cedarquist scoring. Long walks, filling the bases. Harrison hits to Doak, who catches Long at second, Fager scoring. Williams and Fillmore single in succession and Melan and Harrison score. Conover fans. Four runs, four hits, base on balls, two errors.

In the third the Pennsylvanians added two runs. Cedarquist singled. Keeler goes out pitcher to first. Fager singles. Melan out pitcher to first. Long gets a beautiful two bagger and Cedarquist and Fager score. Long out trying to reach third. In the eighth another score was added by the Pennsylvanians. Fager singles to right and is caught at second in an effort to make a double. Melan flies to second. Long is safe on error of short and steals second. Harrison hits to short, who throws wild to first and Long scores. Fillmore out short to first.

Guilford made three runs in the fifth inning. Short singles. Nelson singles and Short goes to third. Nelson steals second. Shore singles over the first baseman's head who recovers the ball and tosses it toward first, no one being at that station. Short and Nelson score and Shore goes to third. Stewart is safe on fielder's choice. Short being thrown out at the plate, short to catcher. Doak out pitcher to first. Edwards singles and Stewart scores. Johnson flies out to center. In the sixth the Quakers made their final tally. Benbow singles and steals second. Davis sacrifices. Short singles and Benbow scores. Short steals second. Nelson fans and Shore goes out second to first.

Rusty Steel.

A good method for removing rust from steel is first to rub the object with sweet oil and then after a day or two to rub it with finely powdered unslaked lime until the rust disappears. Then give it another coating of oil with a woolen cloth and put it in a dry place.

Spiders and Whooping Cough. "Will you please give mother a nut to put a spider in, as baby's got the whooping cough?" This extraordinary request was made to a Tiverton shopkeeper the other day by a little girl whose mother believes that if she imprisons a live spider in a nutshell and ties it round her infant's neck the whooping cough will disappear when the spider dies.—London Mail.
